FROM YOUR HOST

JOSEPH L. BAST
PRESIDENT
THE HEARTLAND INSTITUTE

Welcome to the Sixth International Conference on Climate Change!

Thank you for joining us for a day-and-a-half of presentations about one of the most controversial topics of our time, climate change. After very successful events in Chicago and Sydney, Australia last year, we thought we were finished hosting these events, but recent developments in the climate debate combined with a steady rain of requests that we convene "one more" conference made us relent.

As usual, there is a lot of disinformation being disseminated about us and this conference, so let me quickly set the record straight on a few things. First, The Heartland Institute is an independent 27-year-old nonprofit research and education organization. We are not a "front" for any industry or interest groups. We present "free-market solutions to social and economic problems" on a wide range of topics, and we involve hundreds of academics, scientists, and elected officials in our work.

About the science being discussed at this conference,

- We do not "deny" that climate is changing or even that there may have been a human component to the warming of the late twentieth century.
- We do dispute claims that the warming of the twentieth century was "unprecedented" during the past 1,000 years, or that it has been accompanied by the droughts, floods, storms, and other disasters predicted by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC).
- The climate effects of rising concentrations of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases are not yet known with enough certainty to justify public actions such as energy taxes or "cap-and-trade" legislation.

On the matter of "who paid for this conference,"

- No coal or oil companies contributed toward the cost of this conference, and none contributed toward any previous event.
- The cosponsors of this event were not asked, and did not, contribute toward the cost of the event, so the sources of their funding are irrelevant to the question of who funds this conference.

So ... can we please just debate the science and economics of climate change?

I hope you enjoy the conference, and I welcome your feedback and suggestions for future events.

Sincerely,

Joseph L. Bast
President
The Heartland Institute

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS

Timothy Ball, Ph.D. is an environmental consultant and former climatology professor at the University of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. He also is chairman of the Natural Resources Stewardship Project.

Joseph L. Bast is president and CEO of The Heartland Institute, publisher of Environment & Climate News (among other Heartland Institute publications), and the author or coauthor of 12 books, including Rebuilding America's Schools (1990), Why We Spend Too Much on Health Care (1992), Eco-Sanity: A Common-Sense Guide to Environmentalism (1994), and Education & Capitalism (2003).

Larry Bell is endowed professor of space architecture at the University of Houston, where he founded and directs the Sasakawa International Center for Space Architecture. He is the author of Climate of Corruption: Politics and Power Behind the Global Warming Hoax.

Barry Brill OBE is a New Zealand barrister and solicitor. He is a former Minister of Science & Technology and Minister of Energy, and is currently chairman of the New Zealand Climate Science Coalition.

Alan Carlin, Ph.D. recently retired after more than 38 years as a senior analyst and manager at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. In March 2009 he authored a highly critical internal review of EPA's draft report on endangerment from greenhouse gases, which led him to become a whistle-blower.

Robert "Bob" Carter, Hon. FRSNZ is research professor at James Cook University, Queensland, Australia, where he was head of the School of Earth Sciences between 1981 and 1999. He is a marine geologist and environmental scientist with 40 years' professional experience.

Paul Chesser is executive director of the American Tradition Institute and a senior fellow of the Commonwealth Foundation for Public Policy Alternatives.

Scott Denning, Ph.D. is the Monfort Professor of Atmospheric Science at Colorado State University and an editor of Journal of Climate. His research interests include interactions between the atmosphere and terrestrial biosphere and their effects on exchange of energy, water, and carbon dioxide. His research sponsors include the National Science Foundation, NASA, the U.S. Department of Energy, and NOAA.

James Delingpole is an English columnist and novelist. A libertarian conservative, he writes for The Times, The Daily Telegraph, and The Spectator. He has published several novels and four political books, including Watermelons: The Green Movement's True Colors.

Steve Goreham is an engineer and business executive and author of Climatism! Science, Common Sense, and the 21st Century's Hottest Topic.

Kenneth Haapala is executive vice president of the Science and Environmental Policy Project, compiler of The Week That Was, and a contributor to the NIPCC reports. He is an energy and economics modeler and past president of the oldest science society of Washington.

Tom Harris is executive director of the International Climate Science Coalition (ICSC). He also lectures at Carleton University in Ottawa, Canada, where he teaches a second-year Earth Sciences course, "Climate Change, an Earth Sciences Perspective."

Christopher Horner, J.D. is a senior fellow with the Center for Energy and Environment at the Competitive Enterprise Institute. Horner, an attorney in Washington, DC, has written two best-selling books, Red Hot Lies: How Global Warming Alarmists Use Threats, Fraud and Deception to Keep You Misinformed and The Politically Incorrect Guide to Global Warming.

Craig Idso, Ph.D., chairman of the Center for the Study of Carbon Dioxide and Global Change, is coauthor of Climate Change Reconsidered: The 2009 Report of the Nongovernmental International Panel on Climate Change.

CONFERENCE SPEAKERS

U.S. Sen. Jim Inhofe (R-OK) is the ranking minority member and former chairman of the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works.

Robert O. Mendelsohn, Ph.D. is professor of economics, professor of management, and the Edwin Weyerhaeuser Davis Professor of Forest Policy at Yale University. He has written more than 100 peer-reviewed articles and edited six books. The focus of his research has been the valuation of the environment. His most recent work values the impacts of greenhouse gases, including the effects of climate change on agriculture, forests, water resources, energy, and coasts.

Patrick J. Michaels, Ph.D. is a distinguished senior fellow in the School of Public Policy at George Mason University and senior fellow in environmental studies at the Cato Institute. He is a past president of the American Association of State Climatologists and was program chair for the Committee on Applied Climatology of the American Meteorological Society. Michaels was also a research professor of environmental sciences at the University of Virginia for 30 years.

Marc Morano is executive editor and chief correspondent for ClimateDepot.com, a global warming and eco-news center founded in 2009. Morano served for three years as a senior advisor, speechwriter, and climate researcher for the U.S. Senate Environment and Public Works Committee.

John Nothdurft joined the staff of The Heartland Institute in May 2008 as legislative specialist on budget, tax, and tobacco policy. He was named government relations director in November 2010. Prior to joining Heartland John was national press coordinator for Americans for Fair Taxation.

Nicola Scafetta, Ph.D. is a research scientist in the physics department at Duke University. His research interests are in theoretical and applied statistics and nonlinear models of complex processes. He has published peer-reviewed papers in journals covering a wide variety of disciplines, including astronomy, biology, climatology, economics, medicine, physics, and sociology.

Harrison H. Schmitt, Ph.D. is a former U.S. Senator and a scientist-astronaut who was the last person to step onto the moon. Schmitt served as a scientist with the U.S. Geological Survey, a teaching fellow at Harvard University, a Sherman Fairchild Distinguished Scholar at the California Institute of Technology, and NASA Assistant Administrator for Energy Programs.

David Schnare, Ph.D., J.D. is a scientist and a senior attorney in EPA's Office of Enforcement and Compliance Assurance. Schnare has 40 years of federal and private-sector experience consulting on and litigating local, state, federal, and international environmental legislative, regulatory, risk management, and free-market environmentalism issues.

S. Fred Singer, Ph.D., founder and president of the Science and Environmental Policy Project, is coauthor of Unstoppable Global Warming: Every 1500 Years and Climate Change Reconsidered and professor emeritus of environmental sciences at the University of Virginia.

Willie Soon, Ph.D. is a physicist at the Solar and Stellar Physics Division of the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics and an astronomer at the Mount Wilson Observatory. Soon has published several peer-reviewed papers on solar output and has extensively studied the correlation between solar activity and global climate change.

Roy W. Spencer, Ph.D. is principal research scientist at the University of Alabama in Huntsville, where he directs a variety of climate research projects. He is the author of several books, including most recently, The Great Global Warming Blunder.

James M. Taylor, J.D. is senior fellow for environment policy at The Heartland Institute and managing editor of its Environment & Climate News. He writes Climate Change Weekly, a Heartland e-newsletter, and a weekly column on climate change issues for Forbes.com

David Tuerck, Ph.D. is professor and chair of the Economics Department at Suffolk University. Tuerck is also executive director of the Beacon Hill Institute for Public Policy Research.

Anthony Watts is a 25-year broadcast meteorology veteran and currently chief meteorologist for KPAY-AM radio. He hosts the popular climate change blog Wattsupwiththat.com and a Web site at surfacestations.org devoted to photographing and documenting the quality of weather stations across the U.S.

CONFERENCE COSPONSORS

The 60 Plus Association

UNITED STATES

The 60 Plus Association is a non-partisan seniors' advocacy group with a free enterprise, less government, less taxes approach to seniors' issues, and a strict adherence to the Constitution. Since its founding in 1992, 60 Plus has been viewed as the conservative alternative to the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP). Now 19 years old, 60 Plus has grown to over 7million activists nationally. These activists make 60 Plus a hard hitting organization now leading the fight in Congress to protect the tax rights of seniors, to repeal the most confiscatory of all taxes--the inheritance or estate (death) tax and a myriad of other issues that affect seniors ranging from healthcare (Obamacare) to energy security.

CONFERENCE COSPONSORS

Center for the Study of Carbon Dioxide and Global Change UNITED STATES

The Center for the Study of Carbon Dioxide and Global Change was founded as a non-profit organization in 1998 to provide regular reviews and commentary on new developments in the world-wide scientific quest to determine the climatic and biological consequences of the ongoing rise in the air's CO₂ content. It achieves this objective primarily through the weekly online publication of 'CO₂ Science,' which is freely available on the Internet at www.co2science.org, and contains reviews of recently published peer-reviewed scientific journal articles, original research, and other educational materials germane to the debate over carbon dioxide and global change. The center's main focus is to separate reality from rhetoric in the emotionally charged debate that swirls around the subject of carbon dioxide and global change and to avoid the stigma of biased advocacy by utilizing sound science. In addition, the center is a partner with The Heartland Institute and the Science & Environmental Policy Project in producing the official reports of the Nongovernmental International Panel on Climate Change (NIPCC).

Science and Public Policy Institute

UNITED STATES

The Science and Public Policy Institute is a non-profit institute of research and education dedicated to sound public policy based on sound science. Free from affiliation with any corporation or political party, we support the advancement of sensible public policies for energy and the environment rooted in rational science and economics. Only through science and factual information, separating reality from rhetoric, can legislators develop beneficial policies without unintended consequences that might threaten the life, liberty, and prosperity of the citizenry.

ABOUT THE HEARTLAND INSTITUTE

The Heartland Institute is a nonprofit, nonpartisan research organization based in Chicago. Founded in 1984, it is devoted to discovering, developing, and promoting free-market solutions to social and economic problems.

The Heartland Institute contacts more elected officials, more often, than any other think tank in the United States. According to a telephone survey of 500 randomly selected state and local officials conducted by Victory Enterprises in 2011, nearly 80 percent of state legislators and 50 percent of local officials say they read and rely on Heartland publications.

Some 120,000 of the nation's most influential people — including every state and national elected official — receive at least one Heartland publication every month. Heartland also manages 14 Web sites and operates PolicyBot™, an online clearinghouse for the work of some 350 think tanks and advocacy groups.

Approximately 300 academics and professional economists participate in Heartland's peer review process, and more than 200 elected officials serve on its Legislative Forum. Heartland's full-time staff of government relations professionals interacts daily with hundreds of elected officials across the country, and its public relations and media specialists help shape public opinion by writing and placing dozens of letters to the editor and opinion editorials each week.

Heartland has offices in Chicago, Illinois; Washington, DC; Austin, TX; Tallahassee, FL; and Columbus, OH. It has a full-time staff of 41 and a 2011 budget of $6 million. It is supported by the voluntary contributions of approximately 1,800 supporters. For more information, please visit our Web site at www.heartland.org, call 312/377-4000, or write to The Heartland Institute, 19 South LaSalle, Suite 903, Chicago, Illinois 60603.
